

Company Profile 3: RetailHub (Retail Industry)

Quality	Function ID	Function Name	Function Description	Function Outcome
Good	RC.IP-1	Identify Critical Technical and Non-Technical Assets	RetailHub should identify their critical technical and non-technical assets. Technical assets include data centres, hosting, servers, databases, data, software, models, and services. Non-technical assets include people, processes, and technology. For example, identify critical business processes and understand how IP is safeguarded.	Technical Assets: - Data Centres: Data centres for e-commerce platform. - Hosting Services: Cloud hosting services. - Servers: Physical and virtual servers. - Databases: Customer, product, and sales databases. - Data: Customer data, transaction data, product data, and analytics data. - Software: E-commerce platform software, inventory management software, custom-built retail applications. - Models: Sales prediction models, customer behavior models. - Services: IT support services, cloud services, customer support services. - Networking and Infrastructure: Retail store network infrastructure, Wi-Fi routers, VPN services. - Security Assets: Firewalls, antivirus software, encryption tools. - Development Tools: IDEs, version control systems, CI/CD pipelines. - Communication Systems: Email servers, collaboration tools, VoIP phone systems. - Compliance and Regulatory Reporting Systems: PCI-DSS compliance monitoring. - Business Continuity and Disaster Recovery Systems: Data backup solutions, disaster recovery plans. 2. Non-Technical Assets: - People: Key personnel and staff. - Intellectual Property (IP): Proprietary retail software code, business methodologies.

Quality	Function ID	Function Name	Function Description	Function Outcome
				- Business Processes: Inventory management processes, customer support workflows, financial reporting procedures. - Technology: Network infrastructure, office hardware (e.g., computers, point-of-sale systems), communication systems.